KOTA KINABALU: Universiti Malaysia Sabah Hospital (HUMS) held a mobile clinic service through the KRIS Programme (KPT Prihatin Madani) at Sekolah Menengah Kebangsaan II, Kota Belud recently.

According to the head of the HUMS Medical Team, Dr Rishaini Elengovan, the programme focuses on community health outreach to rural communities.

"A total of 35 staff from HUMS have volunteered, consisting of specialist medical officers, medical officers, dental officers, pharmacy officers and nurses working together as a group to make this programme a success.

"Among the health and medical services implemented are screening, basic health checks, health care and personal hygiene.

"We also provide consultations from health specialists and medical officers in addition to providing medicines for free," Rishaini said in a statement on HUMS volunteers with students discussing healthy eating habits.

Tuesday.

According to Rishaini, students also had the opportunity to get consultation services on good nutrition with the volunteers involved.

The programme was launched by Deputy Higher Education

Minister Datuk Mohammad Yusof Apdal.

The program was attended by 250 students and local residents.
