LABUAN: Officers and staff of Universiti Malaysia Sabah, Labuan International Campus (UMS-KAL) must practise the seven ethics to improve their career and organisation.

The director of UMS-KAL, Associate Professor Dr Shariff Abdul Kadir Omang, said the seven ethics were fast, efficient, meticulous, smart, creative, communication and champion.

"UMS-KAL's citizens need to apply these ethics daily," he said during the orientation of 31 newly joined staff at Theatre Hall of the campus on April 17.

He added that if they could practise those ethics, the performance of the staff and organisation would improve and being recognized at national level and even internationally.

Dr Shariff wanted the staff to always work in a team, including participating in various activities organised by the campus like gotong-royong, sports and other official ceremonies.

"If we work sincerely, respect each other and working with accountability, I believe the UMS-KAL's image will rise to international level," he said.

He also reminded the new staff to always discuss with their department heads so that any issue or problem will be settled without tarnishing the campus' image.

The two-day event was for exposing the staff about the vision, mission and philosophy of UMS-KAL.

During the programme, the senior registrar assistant for administration department, Zamri Mohd Tuah and the dean for Labuan Informatics Science School, Dr Ag Asri Ag Ibrahim, gave talks to the staff.

Also present were senior registrar assistant for administration unit, Musnin Mattersah and senior registrar for examination and competency of UMS-KAL registration department, Joehan Joehari William.
