

Abdul Jamal (centre) poses with the winners of the Sabah and Sarawak ethnic dance competition.

Co-curriculum carnival at UMS Labuan International Campus

BP 25.07.2012 B1

THE co-curriculum carnival for first year students of the Labuan International campus of Universiti Malaysia Sabah was given a rousing support by the local community on the island.

The carnival was officiated by the director of UMS Student Development and Co-Curriculum Centre, Associate Professor Abdul Jamal Abdul Hamid on May 27.

Abdul Jamal said, the carnival was the biggest and the peak of the co-curriculum learning programme for each semester, adding that it was a platform for all students who underwent the programme to exhibit their prowess in their performance and competition.

"The involvement of the students in the carnival is compulsory and the evaluation will be done by the lecturers and others involved.

"The talent and potential of the students can be enhanced through the co-curriculum, while the student's soft skill can be raised to a higher level," he said.

The carnival was not merely to evaluate the talent and potential of the students but also to guide them and to recognise their capability in organising any event.

Students appreciating the stage performances.

Abdul Jamal with the winners of the Unduk Ngadau competition.

Also present were deputy registrar, Zamri Mohd. Tuah and programme director, Tan Wei Yang.

The choral performance by the mixture of local and international students.

The Palapes team.

The organising committee members of the carnival.