KOTA KINABALU: Seven foreign students were among the 200 new intakes who registered for the post-graduate courses in Universiti Malaysia Sabah (UMS) recently.

According to the university's Post-Graduate Centre Senior Assistant Registrar, Alna Tugon, the new intakes were given briefings and methodology course to prepare themselves to become post-graduate students in the university.

Meanwhile, UMS Post-Graduate Centre Deputy Dean (Academic and International), Prof. Dr Patricia Matanjun, said the university will continue to strive to produce competent graduates who could succeed globally.

"I believe you continue your studies to this level in order to improve your career and enable you to serve the community and the nation better.

"It is not easy to succeed on this level. A lot of commitment and sacrifice have to be made besides having patience and maturity in facing all the challenges ahead.

"The university, through your supervisors and lecturers, will do its best in helping you reach your objective," she said.
