KOTA KINABALU: The Vedantanggal programme organised by Universiti Malaysia Sabah (UMS) and the Indian Arts, Culture and Heritage Secretariat can provide an understanding to new students on the culture as well as informal and formal studies.

Sabah MIC Chief, Datuk V Jothi, said the annual programme was aimed at fostering relationship between the new and old students, apart from building good personality and high commitment.

“Apart from creating an excellent, glorious and distinct UMS student, we also want to mould a competitive student from all aspects,” he said at the opening of the programme at Borneo Paradise in Kinarut, near here, Saturday.

He said the programme not only could provide academic exposure but also in terms of intellectual and spiritual aspect for the UMS freshies who would be facing a new life as a university student.

Jothi together with the UMS Indian students and officials of the Vedantanggal programme.

He hoped the new students would fully utilise the opportunity to build up their skills in order for them to go through the challenging university life.

Jothi also said they need to be able to adapt to the surroundings and strengthen unity since they would be studying with students from other races and religions.
